

Updated United States International Rates, 1996 - 2014[©]

Anthony S. Wawrukiewicz and Henry Beecher

Introduction

This PDF file represents an updating of international rates found in U.S. International Postal Rates, 1872-1996. All these new data from 1996 to 2011 have been carefully double-checked and so errors are very unlikely. Where no added space was taken by doing this, some older rates are also included (e.g., see UPU Surface Postal Card and Post Card Rates). A significant number of tables are truncated because it is felt by the author, from his experience, that the heavier weight items will never be seen in collectible form by collectors. Appropriate updated rate group charts are included. This material is copyrighted but may be downloaded free of charge. Those who do not have the earlier domestic and/or international books can order them from the American Philatelic Society. Complete up to date errata are available in an appendix in my latest book Insights into U.S. Postal History, 1855 - 2016.

As time passes, the principal categories for international mail have decreased radically in number. Many categories now include letter correspondence, documents, printed matter and uninsured merchandise. Special categories for printed matter, samples, documents, and "Autre Objects" (AO) no longer exist. The present categories tend to be more related to the level of service they offer.

In the past, for consistency, I have kept the order of rates the same as in the international rate book, with surface rates listed first. I still do this, but with the new shaped-based rates, I now have placed the new shape-based first-class rates since May 12, 2008, at the beginning. However, the more frequently found uses before May 12, 2008, for airmail service and the fees associated with them, are still found further back in these updating pages. The airmail rates tables begin on page 13, the latest rate group list begins on page 46, and international fee tables begin on page 50. Earlier (before January 7, 2001) Canada rates and all Canada fees tables are found on pages 54-5. Later Canadian rates are located elsewhere in the appropriate new rate sections.

May 14, 2007 Rate Changes

With the advent of the international rate changes of May 14, 2007, because these services were so little used, all remaining international surface rates were eliminated (most had been eliminated earlier).

In addition, many retail (counter) airmail services were consolidated into four. These were (1) Global Express Guaranteed (an expedited delivery service that is reliable, high-speed, and date-certain), (2) First-Class Mail International (replaces Single-Piece Letter-Post (Airmail)), (3) Priority Mail International (Replaces Airmail Parcel Post, Global Priority Mail and Economy Parcel Post), (4) Express Mail International (replaces Global Express Mail).

There were new Rate Groups defined, and these are listed below. Aerogrammes were discontinued as a service. Rates for the Marshall Islands and Micronesia no longer were domestic rates but rather special international rates. But, then, rates for the Marshall Islands and Micronesia returned to domestic US rates on November 19, 2007.

May 12, 2008 – First-Class Mail International Rates

With the rate changes of May 12, 2008, the United States Postal Service (USPS) announced a major change in how rates were determined on first-class matter. From that date new shape-based prices for this type of mail were introduced. The new price structure recognizes that each first-class item of different shape, either letter, flat or parcel (interchangeably called package in USPS literature), has substantially different processing costs/efforts, the latter that affect delivery efficiency. For instance, the automatic sorters for flats are significantly slower than those for letters. Note that these are all airmail rates, as surface rates ended on May 14, 2007.

January 14, 2009

As of this date, rate changes were limited to Priority Mail International, Express Mail International and Global Express Guaranteed services. There were no changes in the insurance fees associated with these services. These changes were not actually listed in a Postal Bulletin, but had to be found on-line.

May 11, 2009

These rate changes were limited to all services not changed on January 14, 2009 and all fees.

January 2, 2011

Changes were limited to rates for Priority Mail International and its associated Insurance fees, to rates for Express Mail International and its associated Insurance fees, to rates for Airmail M-Bags, and for rates for Global Express Guaranteed service.

April 17, 2011

These rate changes were limited to all services not changed on January 14, 2009 and all fees.

January 22, 2012

These rate and fee changes were found on-line at the USPS web site in Excel files on January 4, 2012. All domestic and international rates and fees changed at this time.

January 27, 2013

These rate and fee changes were found on-line at the USPS web site in Excel files in January 2013. All domestic rates and fees changed at this time. I also used Notice 123 that listed most of the new rates and fees. Two major changes were noticed – one being that there is no longer a separate rate for postal and post cards. The rate for these items is now the universal basic letter rate of $1.10. Also, International Reply Coupons discontinued as of January 27, 2013 because of lack of demand. The Country Rate Groups of January 2, 2011 are still operable as of this date.

January 26, 2014

These rate and fee changes were found on-line in USPS Notice 123 on January 26, 2014. With the exception of the IPA and ISAL rate groups, the Country Rate Groups of January 2, 2011 are still operable as of this date. These new groups are listed after the January 2, 2011 listings.

May 12, 2008 – First-Class Mail International Rates

With the rate changes of May 12, 2008, the United States Postal Service (USPS) announced a major change in how rates were determined on first-class matter. From that date new shape-based prices for this type of mail were introduced. The new price structure recognizes that each first-class item of different shape, either letter, flat or parcel (interchangeably called package in USPS literature), has substantially different processing costs/efforts, the latter that affect delivery efficiency. For instance, the automatic sorters for flats are significantly slower than those for letters. Note that these are all airmail rates, as surface rates ended on May 14, 2007.

Table A
Type of First-Class Mail¹	Min²	Max²
Letters ³ : length	5 in	11 1/2 in
Letters: height	3 1/2 in	6 1/8 in
Letters: thickness	0.007 in	1/4 in
Large envelopes (flats); length	11 1/2 in*	15 in
Large envelopes (flats); height	6 1/8 in*	12 in
Large envelopes (flats); thickness	1/4 in*	3/4 in
Packages (parcels) ⁴ :	-	-
Notes: 1: Except for “letters,” pieces that are rigid, nonrectangular or not uniformly thick pay parcel rates. 2: in = inch, Max = maximum, Min = minimum 3: For weights over 3.5 ounces, see flats’ rates * Flats exceed at least one of these dimensions  Packages are items weighing less than 13 ounces that exceed at least one of these dimensions. 4: Package’s length + girth cannot exceed 108 in

As indicated in Table A, letters are items that are uniformly thick, rectangular and not rigid, minimum size – 5 in length, 3 1/2 in height, 0.007 in thick, maximum size - 11 1/2 in length, 6 1/8 in height, 1/4 in thick. Letters with any characteristic less than the minimum are unmailable, those with any one characteristic greater than the maximum are flats.

As indicated in Table A, flats are items that are uniformly thick, rectangular and not rigid, minimum size – 11 1/2 in length, 6 1/8 in height, 1/4 in thick, maximum size - 15 in length, 12 in height, 3/4 in thick. Flats with all characteristics less than the minimum are letters, those with any one characteristic greater than the maximum are first-class parcels (packages).

Finally first-class parcels (packages) are items weighing not over 13 ounces that exceed at least one of the three maximum dimensions for flats.

PB 22248 (Dec. 18, 2008). These changes were not actually listed but had to be found on-line. As best I can tell, Group 10 began on January 14, 2009, and includes only Australia and New Zealand. Replaces Airmail Parcel Post, Global Priority Mail and Economy Parcel Post. 6-10 business day delivery. 5% on-line discount available using Click-N-Ship, authorized postage vendor, information-based indicia (IBI) postage meters or electronically transmit customs forms (Still called Commercial Base PMI). The same packaging and flat-rate options available as for domestic Priority Mail. This table goes up to 70 lbs but is truncated here to save space, and because these added rates will rarely be seen on postal artifacts. For these, May 12, 2008, rate groups, see list that follows.

The Postal Service introduces several new variations of the Priority Mail International Flat Rate Envelope and expands the items eligible for the Priority Mail International Small Flat Rate Box price. Included in these variations is the new Priority Mail International Legal Flat Rate Envelope. The new larger Legal envelope, which measures 15 inches by 9-1/2 inches, enables customers to pay a flat rate to ship legal-size documents without folding them, and will be the same price as the regular Priority Mail International Flat Rate Envelope. These new variations of the Priority Mail International Flat Rate Envelope and the Priority Mail International Small Flat Rate Priced Box may be registered based on eligibility for the country destination, but they cannot be insured. PB 22203A (April 6, 2007). RG = Rate Group. This category replaces Global Express Mail. This is an expedited 3-5 business day service guaranteed to some countries. 8% on-line discount available using Click-N-Ship or authorized postage vendor. Document reconstruction insurance and merchandise insurance up to $100 per shipment included (see table below re added merchandise insurance available). This table goes up to 70 lbs (in PB 22203A) but is truncated here to save space, and because these added rates will rarely be seen on postal artifacts. For these May 14, 2007, rate groups, see list that follows.

RG = Rate Group. These rate changes were found on-line at the USPS web site in an Excel file on January 4, 2012. As best I can tell, Group 10 began on January 14, 2009, and includes only Australia and New Zealand. Replaces Airmail Parcel Post, Global Priority Mail and Economy Parcel Post. 6-10 business day delivery. This table goes up to 70 lbs but is truncated here to save space, and because these added rates will rarely be seen on postal artifacts. For these, January 2, 2011, rate groups, see list that follows. RG 11 = Great Britain, & Northern Ireland, RG 12 = Japan, RG 13 = France, RG 14 = China, RG 15 = Brazil, RG 16 = Germany, RG 17 = Netherlands.
